Oral History Interview
with

FATHER OSCAR L. HUBER, C.M.

February 21, 1964
Dallas, Texas
By Jeremiah Collins
For the John F. Kennedy Library

This is Vince Garrity* reporting from radio station WAAF in Chicago. We have an exclusive interview between Jeremiah Collins of Chicago, and the Reverend Oscar L. Huber, C.M., the priest who administered the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church to our late and beloved President, John Fitzgerald Kennedy. This interview was recorded February 21, 1964 in Dallas, Texas. Here is Jeremiah Collins in Dallas, Texas.

*Introduces interview, but does not participate.
MR. COLLINS: Father, the first question I have is: would you describe your exit from the rectory and your arrival at Parkland Memorial Hospital?

FATHER HUBER: I had just finished my lunch when Father Thompson, one of my assistants, came from the recreation hall, where he had been watching TV, and said that the President had been assassinated. I went up to the TV myself and heard the announcements, and then, shortly after that, we went to Parkland Hospital because Parkland is in my parish. Upon arriving there, we had no difficulty in getting in. Someone remarked that, or rather, heard somehow that we had trouble getting through the police. That is not true. As we approached the road that leads into the hospital, the policeman there held out his hand for us to stop. Father Thompson told him that he had the pastor of Holy Trinity with him; we were admitted at once.
When we reached the back of the hospital, near the entrance to the emergency room, we were again halted by the policeman. This same information was given to him, and he told Father to park the car and told me to come at once with him. I was taken to the emergency room where I found the President lying on an emergency table; he was covered with a sheet. I walked past Mrs. Kennedy, who was standing beside him and I immediately gave him conditional absolution and conditional extreme unction. This was followed by the last blessing and various prayers that are read for one who is dying and, also, prayers after death. Shortly after this, I left the emergency room. The President's wife, Mrs. Kennedy, left the room also. I spoke to her outside the emergency room and expressed my sympathy and that of my parishioners to her. Father Thompson and I remained there for some time -- I don't know just how long -- and then returned home.

MR. COLLINS: Father, on your arrival at the hospital, were you able to administer the last rites immediately?

FATHER HUBER: Yes, immediately. There was no delay whatsoever.
MR. COLLINS: When you began administering the last rites, did the President have a white sheet over his face?

FATHER HUBER: Yes, his face was completely covered with the sheet.

MR. COLLINS: Would you say that he was apparently dead?

FATHER HUBER: Apparently dead, yes. Definitely so.

MR. COLLINS: It is reasonable to assume that, while motorcading through Dallas, politics rather than death was on the President's mind. What about the disposition of the recipient toward the sacrament?

FATHER HUBER: You can't answer that question definitely, but it is my humble opinion that any good Catholic, if he happens to commit a sin, will be sorry for it shortly after. I think we almost live that way. We live with the desire to receive the last sacraments, too. I am confident if a good Catholic would happen to fall into a mortal sin, he would be sorry for that immediately. This sorrow will perdure for a great length of time. So it would not necessarily have to be renewed at the particular time when one receives the last sacraments since it perdures and would certainly have its effect.

MR. COLLINS: Thank you, Father. Now comes the tough one. When does the soul leave the body?

FATHER HUBER: We do not know exactly when. Because the soul is a spirit, you can't see it. We know that there is such a thing as apparent death, which means a person certainly seems to be dead; but real death comes when the soul actually leaves the body. We are told, and according to medical science, an apparent death precedes actual death. A person dying after a long illness may be anointed within half an hour after he has drawn his last breath. Anointing may be done as long as two or three hours after a sudden death. This was certainly the case with the President. He was a healthy man. He was assassinated. I anointed him conditionally and gave him conditional absolution in less than a half hour after he was shot. So, I am confident he was simply apparently dead; that real death had not set in.
MR. COLLINS: Thank you, Father. If a soul validly receives the last rites of the Church, what are the spiritual results?

FATHER HUBER: They receive sanctifying grace and, of course, whatever graces would follow. Every sacrament gives sanctifying grace when it's received validly.

MR. COLLINS: So in this case if the sacrament was validly received, that would guarantee salvation?

FATHER HUBER: Well, yes. I have no doubt about the validity of the sacrament there. Providing, of course, that the President had sorrow for sin. I feel confident that his soul was in his body. The only thing would be sorrow for sin. I know he was a good man; we all believe that. I see no reason why he wouldn't be of the mind that death would probably come every time he entered into a large crowd of people. In fact it seems to me someone stated that he said, "If they want to get you, they can get you no matter how many Secret Service men you might have surrounding you." That would show he must have felt that death could come at any time.

MR. COLLINS: To sum up this theological interview, Father, in your professional judgment, did President Kennedy receive the last rites validly?

FATHER HUBER: I would think so. I can't see any reason why he didn't receive the sacrament validly because it is my opinion that his soul had not left his body from what we read from medical science conclusions.

MR. COLLINS:  And there is a common judgment, though it's not a proof, among men that he was a good man.

FATHER HUBER:  Yes. Certainly I think there is.

MR. COLLINS:  Thank you very much, Father Oscar Huber of Holy Trinity Parish in Dallas, Texas.
